An explanatory Memoir will accompany the Map.

To the Proprietors of the Belfast Magazine.

Ardslea House, June 20th, 1814.

Gentlemen,

You will please to acquaint the public, in the next publication of your well conducted and very liberal magazine, that the Rev Henry Hayden, Master of Arts, is at present engaged in, and preparing for the press, a new translation of the Cyropædia, or Institution of Cyrus the Great, from the original Greek of Xenophon; which will be illustrated with copious references, and notes critical and explanatory; a dedication to the Rev. Thomas Elrington, D.D. Provost of Trinity College; a Brief History of the Military Character, and of the Literary Labours of Xenophon, together with a Preliminary Dissertation will be prefixed, in which the different styles and respective merits of the three great Greek Historians, Herodotus, Thucydides, and Xenophon, will be noticed and enlarged on: and in which the probable causes of the relation of certain Historical Facts (principally concerning Cyrus) by Herodotus, which are differently accounted for by Xenophon, will be considered.

The careful perusal of the Old Testament in the original Hebrew, and a comparison of the books of Isaiah and Daniel with the Cyropædia, has made it evident to the translator, that a clear and unintentional coincidence is to be observed between this justly celebrated work and the sacred records. Particularly so, in those signal prophecies relative to the overthrow of Babylon by the elder Cyrus, for which the learned reader is referred to the sublime prophecy of Isaiah, 13th and 14th chapters, and to the 7th Book of the Cyropædia—passim; which the translator considers with Dr. Prideaux, Rollin, and other men of learning and accurate discernment, to be a true history as to the main facts, but considerably embellished with fiction in certain matters, which do not in the least degree effect the truth of the history of Cyrus.

The number of subscribers already exceeds 200, amongst whom are many names, the first both in rank and learning in this kingdom. Your having the kindness to insert this notice as early as possible, will much oblige gentlemen,

Your very obedient,

humble servant,

HENRY HAYDEN.

P S. This work has already been noticed in the Dublin, Belfast, and Waterford Newspapers; and Prospectuses will be ordered when the translator can spare time from his parochial duties.
